The IDSL Group brings together specialist manufacturing and compliance businesses, Integrated Doorsets, FDISUK, Hartland Fire, and Fire Doors Rite, to deliver complete fire-door and passive-fire protection solutions. Through sustained investment, the Group operates three state-of-the-art manufacturing plants in the East Midlands, providing over 135,000 sq. ft of modern production space. These facilities feature advanced CNC machining, precision through-feed cutting, robotic surface coating, and the latest post-forming technology, enabling high-quality manufacture at scale with capacity exceeding 1,000 doorsets per week.

Integrated Doorsets supports major national and regional contractors across the UK and beyond, while FDISUK, Hartland Fire, and Fire Doors Rite deliver industry-leading inspection, maintenance, repair, installation, and compliance services across healthcare, education, residential, defence, and wider public-sector environments. Together they provide end-to-end lifecycle assurance backed by extensive fire-test evidence and trusted compliance processes.

The Group continues to grow responsibly, including the installation of over 2,300 solar panels as part of its PAS 2060-aligned carbon-reduction plan. Unified as a single-source provider of doorsets, ironmongery, and compliance services, our mission is simple: to deliver ultimate reliability through a culture of excellence.

Job Specification:

We are seeking an experienced and detail-oriented Qualified Guild of Architectural Ironmongers (GAI) Scheduler / Estimator to join our team. This is a key technical role supporting the successful delivery of compliant timber doorset and ironmongery packages across a wide range of projects.

The Scheduler/Estimator will possess a strong technical understanding of timber doorsets, architectural ironmongery, current industry standards and compliance requirements, together with the ability to confidently support both internal teams and external customers with technical guidance and troubleshooting.

- Prepare accurate ironmongery schedules and project estimates for timber doorset packages.
- Review project specifications, drawings and architectural requirements to ensure compliance and suitability.
- Provide technical support and troubleshooting assistance to internal departments, contractors, architects and customers.
- Assess and review customer free-issue ironmongery to confirm compatibility with:
 - Relevant standards and regulations
 - Fire and acoustic certification requirements
 - Our doorset test evidence and third-party certification
- Liaise with suppliers and manufacturers regarding product suitability, availability and technical approvals.
- Oversee and coordinate the sales order process from quotation through to order completion.
- Ensure all schedules and documentation are accurate, compliant and commercially viable.
- Maintain up-to-date knowledge of current standards, legislation and best practice within the architectural ironmongery and timber doorset sectors.
- Support continuous improvement within estimating, scheduling and technical processes.

Knowledge, Skills and Experience

- Qualified member of the Guild of Architectural Ironmongers (GAI) Level 3 and must be willing to maintain RegAI status.
- Proven experience in architectural ironmongery scheduling and estimating.
- Strong technical knowledge of:
 - Timber doorsets
 - Fire-rated and acoustic doorsets
 - Ironmongery standards and compliance
 - Relevant UK building regulations and industry standards
- Ability to interpret technical drawings, specifications and test evidence.
- Excellent attention to detail and organisational skills.
- Strong communication skills with the ability to engage confidently with customers, suppliers and colleagues.
- Commercial awareness and problem-solving capability.
- Proficient in Microsoft Office and Intec scheduling/estimating software.

Desirable Experience

- Experience working within the doorset manufacturing industry.
- Knowledge of UKTC, BM TRADA, Certifire and other third-party certification schemes.
- Familiarity with project coordination and order management processes.
